CONDEMN DOUBLE STANDARD

Says Woman of Future Will Demand Single Standard-Talks About Woman of Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.

Monteagle.-Warren Hall was filled with an audience gathered to hear Mrs. Lula Calyar Reese, president of the Nineteenth Century club of Memphis, deliver a lecture on "The Woman of Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." Mrs. Reese opened her speech with a humorous and satirical alluusion to the serpent's preference for the woman in presenting the temptation in the Garden of Eden. She humorously argued that the plan of Satan was to reach the weaker vessel, namely the man, through the stronger person, the woman-maintaining that his Satanic Majesty evidently thought that if he could subdue the female his subsequent conquest of the male would be comparatively easy. She established the fact It was declared that in the most ancient civilizations woman was treated Hamilton street. on an equality with man, and her will this debased condition into a more pital. honored and powerful place. A LESSON IN ECONOMICS.

A workman walked into a grog shop and asked the man behind the bar the amount of his month's bill. He was told it was $11.10. With hands grimy from a hard day's toil the man reached into his pockets, drew out a ten dollar bill and a one dollar bill and handed them over the bar.

Just as he did so the saloon man's son came in and said, "Father, mother sent me down to say that her new hat will be done this evening, and she wants you to give me $12 so she can pay for it."

Without a word the saloon man handed the boy the $11 the customer had given him and added another dollar to it, whereupon the workman, pointing his finger at the saloon man, sa.1: "Is that where my money goes? In the days of the Pharaohs-no less han in the days of the Roman empire -woman was on a plane of equality with man. There is thus, perhaps nothing exorbitant now in her de mand for the vote. She is only asking for a little of her own back.

Sir Gaston Maspero has unearthed ome Pharaonic papyri which throw an interesting light on the Pharaonic consideration of woman and marriage. In those days mankind evidently faored a kind of trial marriaged, and this marriage woman entered on terms of perfect equality, or even, perhaps, on terms of superiority.

This was the usual Pharanoic marriage contract, as deciphered by Sir Gaston Maspero:

"Thou takest me to be thy wife and thou givest unto me a dowry. If it so hap that I tire of thee or that I cast my eyes on another than thee, I will return unto thee a part of thy dowry and will go where good seemeth unto

His Day of Rest.

"Well, Master Jackson," sall a minster, walking homeward after service with an industrious laborer, who was a constant attendant, "Sunday must be a blessed day of rest for you, who work so hard all the week! And you make a good use of the day, for you are always to be seen at church." "Aye, sir," replied Jackson, "it is, deed, a blessed day; I works hard enough all the week, and then I comes to church o' Sundays, and sets me down and lay my legs up and thinks ' nothing."

MADE THE CONDUCTOR SMILE

Dignified Lady Thought She Was Handing Man Her Ticket, But It Was Something Else.

With an air of satisfaction, a diglified matron living on the South side settled herself in a section of the Pullman bound for Chicago-the first stage in a trip to Europe, relates the Kansas City Star. Presently came the conductor, and the woman handed him a small envelope. The conductor had grizzled hair and eyes that twinkled. He looked long and carefully at the object he drew from the envelope. "Did you think, madam," he asked, that you could ride to Chicago on

"Why, of course I did," said the woman.

"But I do not think I can possibly accept this as transportation to Chicago," persisted the conductor, whose eyes were now frankly laughing.

The woman became very reserved, but her eyes snapped. "On what grounds do you refuse my ticket?" she demanded.

At this the conductor could not restrain his mirth. He held up the object he had taken from the envelope. "I didn't-no, I couldn't have given you my bunion plasters." But she had.

Early Strategy.

The origin and the local color of the ollowing story is German. The spirit of it is one which is not, perhaps, entirely alien to American youth. Hans and Fritz, two small boys had gone to the rink to skate. Hans' overcoat hampered him and he wanted to get rid of it. The German coatroom person does not check your coat unless you pay your fee. The fee was only a penny, but Hans did not have the penny. He was at a loss.

"Huh! It's dead easy," spoke up Fritz. "Give me your overcoat. I'll take it to the man at the checking place and say I found it. He'll put it away. When you are ready to go home you go to him and ask if anybody has turned a lost overcoat in to him. Then of course, you'll get yours."

Plain to Him. Among those visiting an art exhibition held recently in Cincinnati was an old German, who wandered about, looking at the paintings with interest. Finally, he stopped before a portrait which showed a man sitting in a high-backed chair. Tacked to the frame was a small white placard, reading: "A portrait of J. F. Jones, by himself." The aged Teuton read the card.

and then chuckled sarcastically: "Vot fools is dese art beoples," he muttered. "Anybody dot looks at dot picture vould know dot Jones is by himself. Nobody else is in der pic-
